

Mission

To use the social web to connect people with disabilities to businesses and communities for the benefit of all

www.jjslist.com

Consumer Reviews

Thousands of reviews are posted by real people on jjslist.com to tell businesses what customers think about the disability awareness of their service. This community-driven website also provides an easy way for people to find disability-aware businesses.

Disability Awareness Directory

Businesses or organizations post their profiles on jjslist.com to promote their commitment to creating environments that are welcoming, flexible and respectful of people with disabilities. A profile gives a business unique access to the disability marketplace.

Trainings

Internet Safety and Literacy

With the Safe and Productive Internet Life & Literacy Skills (SPILLS®) Curriculum, we train teens and adults with disabilities in core Internet life skills, including communications, self-advocacy, and on-line safety, that are essential to life today.

Job Readiness

Transitioning high school students and young adults with disabilities gain hands-on experience in website management, social media and business etiquette by working with our social enterprise website jjslist.com.

Disability Awareness for Businesses

We equip businesses with the tools and resources needed to successfully welcome people with disabilities through their doors and into the community. Training includes lessons on disability-aware service skills, person-first language, and website accessibility.
